PREFACE.

The nucleus of the present Law Library was formed about the year 1843, by the purchase by subscription of a partial set of Pennsylvania Reports from a retiring member of the Bar. Prior to that time, attorneys in all cases where they desired to cite authorities to the Court, were compelled to carry to the Court House their own books. At that time there was no Library Association, and except that now and then there was a fitful interest in the subject, little was done to increase the number of books. A volume or two was occasionally added, and the few books were shelved in the room now used by the Judges as a retiring room.

In 1859 a new impetus was given to the Library by the organization of the Law Library Association, a charter for which was procured on April 11th of that year. Prominent among the corporators were John S. Richards, Henry W. Smith, Hon. J. P. Jones, Hon. David F. Gordon, Wm. M. Baird, Hon. Jeremiah Hagenman and A. G. Green.

On the 21st of May, 1859, an organization was effected in pursuance of the charter, and active measures taken to raise funds for the purchase of books. A committee was appointed to devise measures for increasing the Library, consisting of Henry W. Smith, John S. Richards and Jeremiah Hagenman, whose efforts were very successful, and from that time to the present, the Library has constantly and steadily grown until it now numbers upwards of twenty-seven hundred volumes of law and miscellaneous books, and ranks among the best law libraries of the State, and has become a great credit to the county and to its projectors. It is productive of a great saving of time to the Court, and consequently of money to the county, and tends to increase the efficiency of both Bench and Bar in the administration of justice.

In 1869, the rear additions were built to the Court House, and the old room having become too small, the Library was removed to its present commodious quarters.

The late Justice Woodward was always an active and zealous friend of the Library, and during nearly the whole time of his occupancy of the Bench of this district, was President of the Association. No mention of the Library, however, would be complete without referring to the late Joseph Ritter, Esq. Mr. Ritter was the Librarian from the infancy of the Library up to the time of his decease, and he who was so faithful in all the duties of life, was especially faithful and zealous in everything that pertained to the Library. He seemed to take an especial pride in its preservation, and regarded every book as an object of his particular care. The location of the books and their titles were as familiar to him as was his own pleasant face to the members of the Bar. To his efficiency and assiduous care is largely due its growth and present usefulness.

The present is the first systematic attempt at making a complete catalogue of the Library. The endeavor has been to make it as nearly perfect as possible, and we think every book upon the shelves will be found indexed under its proper head. Under the plan we have adopted, each book is catalogued both in the name of the author and under the subject of which it treats. Under the name of the author the full title page is generally given, so that it can at once be seen upon what particular branch or branches of a subject a book treats, the date of the edition, and name of the editor, if any. That this work will facilitate the labors of the members of the Bar, in their search for the sources of the law, is the hope of the compilers.
